

PATERSON FIRM TO BOOST ITS OUTPUT WITH NEW MACHINE

Increase Expected To Be From 10 to 15 Per Cent, It is Said

LOST MONEY IN 1948

Company Suffered The First Labor Strike In Its History

Losing money for the first time in its history, last year, the Paterson Parchment Paper Co., here, is now in the last stages of a $1,500,000 expansion program. With the completion of a new paper making machine this summer, output is expected to jump from 10 to 15 per cent. Until the new machine is completed the company's production will be decreased. It is now limited to a three-paper-machine basis.

The company lost money last year for the first time in its history. The $112,046 net loss, as against a $353,298 net profit in 1947, resulted from the first strike in Paterson's history. The strike lasted exactly 13 weeks—one full quarter—from Aug. 20 to Nov. 20.

As a result, the company's production of 17,175,797 pounds was 40.8% below 1947, while sales declined 36%. The company had built up an inventory of its products but the picket line prevented the goods from being moved. The strike also retarded work on the new machine as the outside contractors were prevented from proceeding with their work.

However, the company sees "better days" ahead. The new machine will enable it to produce additional special papers, giving it greater diversification. Paterson is the first and oldest vegetable parchment maker in the United States, furnishing about 40% of the total vegetable parchment sold in this country.

It has virtually completed its re-adjustment to "normal peacetime operations." Earnest R. Leonard, vice president, states that operations currently are about on the same level as in 1949. This would indicate that the company's net sales this year will be about 25% under the 1947 total of $5,891,587.

There are several factors responsible for this. Mainly, however, it is the return of the buyers' market, with the supply exceeding the demand.

LANGHORNE MAN COLLAPSES AFTER RESCUE EFFORTS

William C. Radweller Aids In Pulling Woman From River

HAS HEART ATTACK

Carried Woman Into Hospital and Was Then Stricken

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 25 — A Langhorne man, now a retired Princeton policeman, collapsed in a hospital here after aiding in the rescue of a young mother from drowning in the Delaware river.

The woman, Mrs. Jacqueline Bastecki, 27, of 154 Bloomsbury street, allegedly climbed over the waist-high wall shortly after noon. The scene is about a block above the lower highway bridge across the river. As she poised for an instant on top of the wall, before plunging into the water on the other side, she was noticed by motorists driving along John Fitch Way, which runs along the river at this point.

First to act was Theodore Wiggins, 27, of 65 Decatur St. He stopped his car, seized a rope and jumped in after Mrs. Bastecki.

Meanwhile, William C. Radweller of Langhorne, who retired 15 years ago from the Princeton police force, also stopped.

Almost immediately, Wiggins and Radweller were joined by Frederick Skerrett, of 20 Market St.; Charles F. Davis, 29, of 115 Fall St.; Samuel Jamison, of 41 Turpin st., and John Smith, 26, of 57 Decatur st. After Wiggins fastened the rope around the woman, the others pulled her out of the water and back up over the wall.

FACING THE FACTS

"Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth." (Galatians, IV-16)

A Doylestown minister, displeased by a recent editorial in this column ("U. S. War Party", March 30), wrote to the Philadelphia Bulletin and New York Times to protest that factual criticisms of current national and international issues give comfort to the communists and fellow-travelers.

In effect, his idea seemed to be that, for the sake of national unity, only one side of public problems ought to be discussed.

With this view-point this newspaper cannot agree. There are worse things in life than disunity. Likewise, this nation has other perils menacing it which are equally entitled to consideration, along with Communism. We are, for example, only a hop, skip and jump ahead of national bankruptcy; we have slid so far away from our Constitution that it is an open question whether we can ever get back to being a free republic; our historic two-party political system has largely bogged down, so that no one can be certain just when the seat of real power is in our government.

Moreover, still more fundamentally, the whole American people seem to be in the grip of a "take it easy" lassitude, indifferent alike to their past disappointments, present difficulties and future dangers.

If there ever has been a time in American history for men of faith and courage, men who know something about American principles and who are willing to do battle in their defense—if there ever was a time for such men to stand up and say their say, this would seem to be it.

TOUGH CAB RULING

What may be the death knell of the non-scheduled airline industry has been sounded by the Civil Aeronautics Board under new rulings. Effective May 20, the CAB is revoking its blanket permit, under which 110 large "nonsked" carriers, and approximately 2,000 smaller carriers have been operating.

After that date, the large nonsked airlines will be licensed on an individual basis after thorough investigation of operations which each one proposes. Indications are that licenses will be handed out sparingly.

CAB's reasons for its drastic move seem to be based on the reasoning that large "irregular" carriers have been using the blanket permit as a cloak for operations which did not jibe with the intent and purposes of the ruling.

That is, the non-skeds were flying certain schedules with such a degree of regularity that they were in direct competition with scheduled airline flights. At the same time the nonskeds were able to cut financial corners because of the looser ground and air regulations under which they operated. The result was that they were able to pass along the savings effected by cutting air travel fares.

Paradoxically, it often turned out that the nonsked airlines, which operated without airmail subsidies, were in better financial condition—on paper—than scheduled airlines. But the safety records of the nonskeds were woefully below those of the scheduled domestic carriers.

There is no doubt that the CAB ruling will work hardships and inequities. In effect it will be squeezing out competition and stifling small business. But until such time as Congress sees fit to overhaul the act under which CAB operates, that is the way it will be.

LONELY HEARTS

A Delaware woman has been arrested, charged with plotting the murder of two men she married after they answered an advertisement she inserted in a "lonely hearts" publication. Both were old, with considerable means.

This is not a unique development. Records show that lonely men and women often fail to find the love and companionship they seek. Many time murder effectively ends their loneliness. Lonely persons are ideal victims, and murder for profit is a classic type of crime.

Criminal records in this country and abroad are full of cases similar to the Delaware crime. As many as 10 to 20 murders have been perpetrated by men who lured women of means into marriage, only to be summarily murdered. An Indiana woman accused of killing at least 10 husbands has never been apprehended. It is impossible to estimate how many similar murders have never come to light.

Those who think they are lonely, especially if they have means, should be careful in entering into new friendships.

Mastriana and Pecci Ceremony Occurs Sunday

TRENTON, Apr. 25 — A Trentonian and a Bristol man were wed here yesterday afternoon, the setting for the four o'clock ceremony being St. James R. C. Church, here. The two who took the vows are Miss Ann Maria Pecci, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pecci, 17 Bond street, and Mr. Vincent James Mastriana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mastriana, 443 Cedar street, Bristol, Pa.

White slipper satin was the choice of the bride for attire on her wedding day. The gown featured a sweet-heart neckline trimmed in white and silver beads; fitted bodice; and full skirt falling into a long train. Her long veil had trim of orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book on which rested two orchids, also valley lilies.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Florence Patch and Lucy Rainiero, both of this city, were attired in aqua. The gowns had off-shoulder necklines, fitted bodices and full-cut skirts. Head-piece of each was a king's crown. The attendants carried fan-shaped bouquets of red roses.

The drive-way over the Mill street canal bridge has been replanked.

The most interesting piece of news that Bristolians have lately heard was that received on Saturday that a compromise had been reached in the suit between the Bristol - Doylestown Trolley Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and that permission had been granted to lay the trolley tracks under the bridge of the Trenton Cut-off.

Workmen commenced the work of laying the tracks under the bridge on Monday morning, and it is expected that the cars will be running through this week. In about three or four weeks it will be possible to take the trolley at Bristol and ride to the county seat without interruption.

Persons who had occasion to be up and stirring yesterday morning at five o'clock were treated to a remarkable and beautiful sight. At that hour the stars were shining and the effulgent moon was sinking in the western skies and shedding a rich glow over the quiet and sleeping town. At the same time a passing cloud was considerably pouring its watery contents over the landscape. The result that a beautiful and perfectly-formed rainbow was arched in the west.

The Langhorne Sorosis has been presented by Mitchell Watson with a handsome building lot, 60 feet front by 150 feet deep on Bellevue avenue, in the northern section of the borough, on which to erect a club house which has been in contemplation for some time.

Sante Mastriana, Bristol, were the best men.

Members of the bridal party were served dinner at 5:30, and a reception took place at seven, both affairs being held in Italian-American Sportsmen's Club, here.

Leaving for two weeks honeymoon in the New England states, Mrs. Mastriana was attired in a black gabardine suit, biege coat and black hat. The couple will make their home at 443 Cedar street, Bristol.

For the wedding ceremony, Mrs. Pecci, the bride's mother, chose a wine-toned dress and black hat; while Mrs. Mastriana wore a black dress and hat. Corsages for each were made up of red roses and gardenias.

America won the war, but has thus far completely lost the peace.

If the world is ever to be put on a solid, stable and peaceful footing, which has been one of the great objectives of mankind since recorded history began, it would seem imperative to examine the recent record carefully, to see wherein the mistakes have been made.

Moreover, this free America is the one lone Gibraltar of liberty rising out of a world of weak-hearted surrender to the principles of Communism. One by one, every other great nation on earth, and most of the little ones, have succumbed to the temptations of socialism, statism, regimentation, planned management.

Take what example you will, whether that of Russia, or Italy, or Germany, or France, or more recently England—and when you examine the facts as they existed before the surrender to the principles of Socialism and dictatorship, you find that in each of these countries there were in evidence precisely the same trends and emotions now so widespread in our own land.

We have, as a people, the same temptations; and there has not developed, on a wide scale, any of the reaction which might be expected in a wise and alert race—to profit by the mistakes of our predecessors on the downward trail of totalitarianism. For those who believe in the Republic and in the Constitution, this is a time of supreme peril. Surrender is a one-way street. Long ago a wise man said: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." The truth of this saying is now in process of being demonstrated. If America is vigilant, the American people's freedom can be saved; otherwise, probably not.

In such an hour, the factual examination of public events is not merely a service, but a patriotic duty. It is idle to say that telling the truth may help the Communists. NOT telling it may be the ruination of the American destiny!

This is a time for more facts, more truth—a period when it is imperative to examine BOTH sides of public questions.

Since Germany surrendered, this country has wasted four precious years. We today are much farther from world peace than when the War ended.

We have largely demoralized our own reconversion into peacetime conditions. We have been saved (thus far) only by Congress from plunging directly into Socialism at the President's beckoning.

Despite the incredibly vast debt with which we emerged from the War, which will be a mortgage on the necks of the next three generations at least, we are still pouring out our national resources with the fabled recklessness of the "sailor on a spree."

Uncountable billions have been expended on a parade of dazzling ventures in globaloney, in which the Atlantic Pact is by no means the first, and probably not the last.

Like a donkey mired in mud, the wriggings of the New Deal have merely dragged us deeper into a morass of defeatism, international rivalries, entangling alliances. We have been making progress backwards. With this background, the rapid increase in the power of the military branch of government, to the point where it has incredibly vast economic controls, direct manpower controls, the most influential lobby in Washington, access to the inner councils of the President, and, until quite recently, ran the State Department as well—this is a matter of public concern worthy of the most elaborate newspaper study.

As to the Communists, if they derived any pleasure from reading the editorial in question, or any other which has appeared in this column, that's a very small matter.

The fact is that this newspaper has been as bitter and implacable an enemy of Communism as one could find.

It was against building Communist Russia into a world menace—back in the days when Roosevelt and Truman were conceding everything to Stalin, including a great deal of property and lives which didn't belong to them, and which, by the Atlantic Charter, this nation had promised sacredly to defend for their small-nation owners.

It has been consistently against the infiltration of pro-Communists into the national government—was so both before and after President Truman saw fit to dismiss this matter as a "red herring."

It has been consistently against Communism in other fields; the school system, for example, and the radio and press propagandizing agencies. It has opposed it especially in the labor movement, and has pointed out over and again that the anti-Communist provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act would make it preservation worth while, even if all the rest were bad—which it isn't!

Summing up what this column is interested in primarily is to get its readers to think realistically about the many questions facing this generation.

The minister in question appears to have the theory that President Truman, having been re-elected by some twenty-five percent or so of the qualified American voters, is the one to do the thinking for the American people—and that it is presumptuous for anyone else to inquire or criticize with respect these matters.

It's going to be hard to reconcile these two viewpoints.

Navy Man Takes As His Bride, Miss M. Paoletti

A young woman resident of 1618 Trenton avenue, on Saturday became the wife of a man who is serving in the U. S. Navy. The two o'clock wedding in Calvary Baptist Church united Miss Mary Paoletti, daughter of Mrs. Costantino Paoletti, and Donald A. Bobb, R. M. S. N., stationed at Norfolk, Va., the son of Mr. Harry A. Bobb, Philadelphia. The bride's escort to the altar was her brother, Mr. Joseph Paoletti, Trenton avenue.

The clergyman who performed the ceremony was the Rev. Lehman Strauss; the organist, Miss Vera Tomlinson, Walnut street; and the vocalist, Miss Viola Winkle, Croydon. The latter's offerings were "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me".

Miss Anna Maske, Trenton avenue, the maid of honor, was attired in light green marquisette, the costume being floor-length. Her matching hat was of marquisette, slippers of silver tone, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids, the Misses Martha Hattenfield, Croydon, and Lillian Paoletti, sister of the bride, wore lavender marquisette, hats of the same color tone, silver slippers, and in their arms they bore yellow rose-buds.

As she made her way up the aisle, the bride looked attractive in white satin, with French lace midriff. The trained gown had sweetheart style neckline and long sleeves. Her head-dress and veil were of net, slippers of satin, and she carried white roses with a lavender orchid at the center.

Men in the bridal party were Mr. Harry Bobb, Philadelphia, brother of the bridegroom, who served as best man; and Mr. Melvin Bobbs, Bath street, the usher.

The bridal party was served dinner at the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Trenton, N. J., and the evening reception took place at the Paoletti home.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobb are spending a honeymoon in the Pocono Mountains. Travelling costume of the bride consisted of a midnight blue suit, gray topper and gray accessories. She wore the orchid from her bridal bouquet. While the bridegroom is in the service, Mrs. Bobb will continue to reside at 1618 Trenton avenue. She is a graduate of Bristol high school.

To her attendants the bride gave bracelets; and the bridegroom presented the best man and usher with wallets.

long sleeves, form-fitting bodices, and trim of net. They were silver slippers; Chinese style head-dress with veil to match their costumes, and carried fans. Miss Pirri's fan had a yellow rose-hud at the tip of each rib, and a lavender orchid at the base; while the fan carried by Miss Amadio featured a red and white rose-hud and a lavender orchid. The little flower girl, Rebecca Pecora, Garden street, was costumed in a floor-length dress of orchid faille, her matching fan having a miniature orchid and yellow rosebuds. On her hair she wore a wreath of orchid-toned artificial flowers; and her slippers were white.

Three Young Women Attend Miss Mary Finney at Wedding

A maid of honor, two bridesmaids, best man and two ushers comprised the bridal party at the Saxton-Finney rites in St. Mark's R. C. Church at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Albert Glass officiated at the ceremony uniting Miss Mary Jane Finney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Finney, 431 Buckley street, and Mr. Horace Carter Saxton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Saxton, 531 Swain street. Mr. Finney escorted his daughter to the altar as a bridal march was played by Miss Katherine Keating, of Linden street. Vocal selections were by Miss Margaret Fallon, Corson street.

The bride was gown in white organdy, the costume having an illusion neckline, with lace ruffles providing an off-shoulder effect. Lace was also used for vertical ruffles on the skirt. Sleeves were long. Her tiara of seed pearls held a lace-trimmed net veil; and her arm bouquet of white roses had at its center a white orchid.

The trio of attendants were likewise costumed in organdy, these gowns having apron effect of eye-let, and sleeves being cap style. Miss Mary Hoffman, 711 Pine street, the maid of honor, wore white, with trim of lavender; her white picture hat of horsehair having lavender streamers. Her arm bouquet was composed of mixed blossoms in lavender and white. Miss Patricia Aida, Jackson street, wore yellow; and Miss Louise Smith, Swain street, light green. These two bridesmaids had horsehair picture hats, with streamers, to match their gowns. Arm bouquets for the two were made up of mixed spring blossoms.

Mr. Joseph Singer, Bath street, was best man for Mr. Saxton; the ushers being Messrs. Michael Hall, Fourth avenue, and Edward Harn, Crofton.

For attendance at the wedding Mrs. Finney selected a navy blue dress and pink accessories; and choice of Mrs. Saxton, mother of the bride-groom, was an aqua dress and white accessories. Corsages of the two were white roses.

Covers were arranged for 100 when dinner was served at the Finney residence; the six o'clock reception taking place there also, with dancing in the rumpus room.

Mr. and Mrs. Saxton are spending two weeks at Miami, Fla. as a traveling costume the bride chose a navy blue gabardine suit, white straw picture hat with navy blue trim, and white accessories. The orchid from her bridal bouquet was used as a corsage. Her gifts to attendants were sterling silver bracelets; and to the best man and ushers Mr. Saxton gave tie pins. The bride and bride-groom, who will reside at 431 Buckley street, are graduates of Bristol high school.

convention at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, October 11th, 12th and 13th. A summer school of leadership training is also looked forward to, these to be held the week of July 11th at West Chester State Teachers College.

Hostesses to the group were the East Bristol Township, Maple Shade, Croydon and Laurel Bend Parent-Teacher associations. The invocation in the morning was given by the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church. Opening the morning session at ten o'clock, Henry Adams, president of Maple Shade P.T.A., extended greetings to the group; and the response was given by Mrs. Stanley Blinn, Newtown, vice president of Bucks County Council. Group singing was led by Miss Helen Chew, Buckingham, assisted by Anne Carver, Buckingham, pianist. A chalk talk was given by Mrs. Jane Gelsinger, a representative of the Philadelphia Dairy Council, entitled "Stag Line."

A panel discussion on "Public Health in Bucks County" completed the morning session. There were four participants with Mrs. Pratt presiding at the discussion.

Dr. Ruth Pedder, assistant to the county superintendent of schools, had as her subject "New Psychiatric Guidance Clinic," speaking on the need of a psychiatric clinic for the school children. She cited several cases to illustrate her point.

Mrs. Grace Bancroft, R. N., Doylestown, representing the State Department of Health, had as her subject "Public Health Nurse of the Future."

Bucks County." Mrs. Bancroft very briefly outlined the work of the public health nurses in Bucks County. She mentioned that there are four public health nurses who conduct clinics in Bucks County—two at Doylestown, and one each at Quakertown and Bristol. She announced date of the biennial orthopedic clinic at Abington Hospital as May 27th.

A Bristol resident, Mrs. Minerva Epstein, told of "Work of the Bucks County Tuberculosis Society." She stated that the fight waged against tuberculosis by the society is supported solely through sale of Christmas seals. She informed that over 6,000 chest X-rays were taken last year in the county, and that such have made people X-ray conscious.

Robert Jones, Doylestown, state representative of the National Foundation, Infantile Paralysis, told the audience that 50 cents of every dollar raised stays in the local chapter for local use.

Luncheon was served in the fire station by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to 50 guests during the noon recess. The Hawaiian Sereaders, Donald Hibbs, Edgely; Joseph Baines and Arnold Moore, Croydon, furnished luncheon music.

The afternoon session opened with an outstanding performance given by the Bristol high school glee club under direction of Charles Quigley. This program was as follows: Salutation (Gaines); "The Builder" (Cadman) conducted by John Parrilla; "The Bells of St. Mary," solo by Lester Shire; "Nocturne" (Eybisch), male quartet, Edward Plowman, 1st tenor, Lester Shire, 2nd tenor, Harold Thompson, 1st bass, John Parrilla, 2nd bass; solo, "Just A Wearyin' For You," Lester Shire; Mary Had a Little Lamb, entire group; "Italian Street Song" (Victor Herbert), solo, Joan Marsh; octet, "There is a Tavern in the Town"; solo, "Love is Where You Find It," Joan Marsh; "One World" (O'Hara), and "Onward Christian Soldiers" (Sullivan-Waring), glee club; "Battle Hymn of the Republic" (Steele-Waring), solo, Lester Shire; assistant accompanist was Helen Clott; and the accompanist, Berenice Britton.

Other music for the day was in the form of vocal soli, Elizabeth Crawford, Buckingham, sang "June Is In My Heart"; and Kenneth Fell, Buckingham, sang "Clancy Lowered the Boom."

Paterson Firm to Boost Its Output With New Machine

mand. Leonhard explained that Paterson does a lot of its selling through paper merchants, all of whom today have over-expanded and unbalanced inventories.

"Once these inventories are exhausted," he remarked, "buying will be resumed."

Leonhard explained that the company today makes its vegetable parchment from pulp instead of rag, as in the past. He said that pulp no longer was in short supply, adding that prices were also easing.

A considerable portion of Paterson's output goes to the food industry. From first quarter results, it is continuing to show increased sales volume. This, naturally, will tend to keep Paterson's production up.

Leonhard said that while the company had a fairly large export business in the early 40s, largely from lend-lease, the export business today was rather small "due to the dollar shortage." Last year export shipments to 32 countries amounted to 673,907 pounds. In 1947, export sales—to 42 countries—totaled 1,290,860 pounds.

Until a few years ago, Paterson Parchment was family-controlled and operated. Its president, William C. Leonhard, is a grandson of one of the founders. Today the company has some 400 stockholders and its stock is traded over-the-counter.

The company was started in 1885 at Paterson, N. J., in the "old gun mill" where the first Colt guns were manufactured. Later it moved to a new building in Passaic, N. J. In 1902 it absorbed the Megargee Paper Mills, which made its base paper, water leaf, and was located at Modena. Megargee remained as a subsidiary until 1923, when it was consolidated with Paterson and the company moved to its present plant at Bristol.

Vegetable parchment was discovered by accident by W. E. Gaine, an Englishman, in 1853. While preparing a sheet of cotton rag paper made by hand for use in demonstrating a lecture, he accidentally dropped it into a receptacle containing sulphuric acid. He discovered, to his surprise, that the paper had taken on an entirely new form, that it had become translucent, and that no amount of soaking in water, or even boiling, had any effect on it. However, it was not until 1861 that vegetable parchment was first produced on a commercial scale.

Paterson today produces its vegetable parchment in 175 variations. At its Bristol plant it operates complete paper making, parchmentizing, printing and finishing divisions, with millions of plain and printed food wrappers moving out of the plant daily. It also has a finishing and printing plant at San Francisco, where it processes items for customers' requirements on the West Coast.

The vegetable parchment is a wet-strength and grease-resisting paper. It is used for butter wrappers, turkey crate liners, fish fillet wrappers, vegetable wraps, pie doilies, auto accessory wrappers, ice cream wrappers, rubber mold liners, druggist ointment pads, flow-

Leonhard was asked whether the cellophane industry would not furnish competition for his business. He replied in the negative, pointing out that items such as bacon had to "breathe" and that experience had demonstrated that they could do so while wrapped in vegetable parchment, but could not when wrapped in cellophane.

By the same token, he said, vegetable parchment could not compete with cellophane in wrappings for self-service counters in that while it was translucent, it was not transparent.

PATERSON FIRM TO BOOST ITS OUTPUT WITH NEW MACHINE

Increase Expected To Be From 10 to 15 Per Cent, It is Said

LOST MONEY IN 1948

Company Suffered The First Labor Strike In Its History

Losing money for the first time in its history, last year, the Paterson Parchment Paper Co., here, is now in the last stages of a $1,500,000 expansion program. With the completion of a new paper making machine this summer, output is expected to jump from 10 to 15 per cent. Until the new machine is completed the company's production will be decreased. It is now limited to a three-paper-machine basis.

The company lost money last year for the first time in its history. The $112,046 net loss, as against a $351,298 net profit in 1947, resulted from the first strike in Paterson's history. The strike lasted exactly 13 weeks—one full quarter—from Aug. 20 to Nov. 29.

As a result, the company's production of 17,175,797 pounds was 40.8% below 1947, while sales declined 36%. The company had built up an inventory of its products but the picket line prevented the goods from being moved. The strike also retarded work on the new machine as the outside contractors were prevented from proceeding with their work.

However, the company sees "better days" ahead. The new machine will enable it to produce additional special papers, giving it greater diversification.

Paterson is the first and oldest vegetable parchment maker in the United States, furnishing about 40% of the total vegetable parchment sold in this country.

It has virtually completed its re-adjustment to "normal peacetime operations." Earnest R. Leonard, vice president, states that operations currently are about on the same level as in 1940. This would indicate that the company's net sales this year will be about 25% under the 1947 total of $5,891,587.

There are several factors responsible for this. Mainly, however, it is the return of the buyers' market, with the supply exceeding the demand.

One Hundred and Thirty-Two Leave Here This Morning

FOUR-DAY SCHEDULE

The "big day" for Bristol high school seniors has at last arrived. The "big day," today, marked the start of the grand event of high school life—the journey to the nation's capital.

When a Pennsylvania Railroad train made a special stop at Bristol at 8:42 this morning, 74 girls, 58 boys, and 11 chaperones boarded it, bound for Washington, D. C. Four big days will be ahead of them, and it is expected they will make use of every minute.

The chaperones are: Warren P. Snyder, superintendent of Bristol schools; David Hertzler, high school principal; Mrs. William Almond, member of Bristol school board; Charles F. Boyd, Miss Anna Bressi, Paul D. Brown, Lester P. Michael, Mrs. William Murray, advisors; Mrs. Margaret Gontar, Philip B. Frankmore, of the faculty. The party carried box lunches which they ate on the train. Arrival in Washington was scheduled for 11:45 a. m. At that time the group was divided into two parties. After their baggage was picked up for delivery to the Hotel Plaza, the headquarters, group A went by special bus to the Bureau of Printing and Engraving, the capitol, Supreme Court building, and the Folger Library. LANGHORNE MAN COLLAPSES AFTER RESCUE EFFORTS

HAS HEART ATTACK

Carried Woman Into Hospital and Was Then Stricken

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 25—A Langhorne man, now a retired Princeton policeman, collapsed in a hospital here after aiding in the rescue of a young mother from drowning in the Delaware river.

The woman, Mrs. Jacqueline Bastecki, 20, of 154 Bloomsbury street, allegedly climbed over the waist-high wall shortly after noon. The scene is about a block above the lower highway bridge across the river. As she poised for an instant on top of the wall, before plunging into the water on the other side, she was noticed by motorists driving along John Fitch Way, which runs along the river at this point.

First to act was Theodore Wiggins, 27, of 65 Decatur St. He stopped his car, seized a rope and jumped in after Mrs. Bastecki.

Meanwhile, William C. Radweller of Langhorne, who retired 15 years ago from the Princeton police force, also stopped.

Almost immediately, Wiggins and Radweller were joined by Frederick Skerrett, of 29 Market St.; Charles P. Davis, 29, of 115 Fall St.; Samuel Jamison, of 41 Turpin st., and John Smith, 26, of 57 Decatur st.

After Wiggins fastened the rope around the woman, the others pulled her out of the water and back up over the wall.

FACING THE FACTS

"Am I therefore become your enemy, because I tell you the truth." (Galatians, IV-16)

A Doylestown minister, displeased by a recent editorial in this column ("U. S. War Party", March 30), wrote to the Philadelphia Bulletin and New York Times to protest that factual criticisms of current national and international issues give comfort to the communists and fellow-travelers.

In effect, his idea seemed to be that, for the sake of national unity, only one side of public problems ought to be discussed. With this view-point this newspaper cannot agree.

There are worse things in life than disunity. Likewise, this nation has other perils menacing it which are equally entitled to consideration, along with Communism. We are, for example, only a hop, skip and jump ahead of national bankruptcy; we have slid so far away from our Constitution that it is an open question whether we can ever get back to being a free republic; our historic two-party political system has largely bogged down, so that no one can be certain just when the seat of real power is in our government.

Moreover, still more fundamentally, the whole American people seem to be in the grip of a "take it easy" lassitude, indifferent alike to their past disappointments, present difficulties and future dangers.

If there ever has been a time in American history for men of faith and courage, men who know something about American principles and who are willing to do battle in their defense—if there ever was a time for such men to stand up and say their say, this would seem to be it.

BRIDAL COSTUME HAS A CHINESE ACCENT

Miss Anna Paul Wears Costume of White Satin and Lace

WED TO LOUIS AMADIO

Gowned in white satin and Chantilly lace—the costume having a Chinese accent—Miss Anna Paul, 740 Corson street, made her way to the altar of St. Ann's R. C. Church, at the hour of 10 yesterday morning, there to become the bride of Mr. Louis Amadio. Her attractive gown, train, featured a mandarin collar, form-fitting bodice, long sleeves with inserts of lace at the cuffs. Her French illusion veil, finger-tip in length, had a border of Chantilly lace, this being held in place by a Chinese style head-piece of beads.

She wore white satin ballerina slippers, and carried a white satin fan. At the tip of each rib of the fan appeared a baby lily, and at the base of the fan a lavender orchid.

The vows were taken in the presence of the Rev. Peter Pinet, officiating clergyman, and a large company of relatives and friends. The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul, was escorted to the altar by her father. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. Pietro Amadio, 715 Wood street.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Yolanda Pirri, Adams street, and Catherine Amadio, 327 Washington street, cousin of the bridegroom, were attired in blue and green and yellow, respectively. Gowns were of rayon faille, with mandarin collars.

TOUGH CAB RULING

What may be the death knell of the non-scheduled airline industry has been sounded by the Civil Aeronautics Board under new rulings. Effective May 20, the CAB is revoking its blanket permit under which 110 large "nonsked" carriers, and approximately 2,000 smaller carriers have been operating.

After that date, the large nonsked airlines will be licensed on an individual basis after thorough investigation of operations which each one proposes. Indications are that licenses will be handed out sparingly.

CAB's reasons for its drastic move seem to be based on the reasoning that large "irregular" carriers have been using the blanket permit as a cloak for operations which did not jibe with intents and purposes of the ruling.

That is, the nonskeds were flying certain schedules with such a degree of regularity that they were in direct competition with scheduled airline flights. At the same time the nonskeds were able to cut financial corners because of the looser ground and air regulations under which they operated. The result was that they were able to pass along the savings effected by cutting air travel fares.

Paradoxically, it often turned out that the nonsked airlines, which operated without airmail subsidies, were in better financial condition—on paper—than scheduled airlines. But the safety records of the nonskeds were woefully below those of the scheduled domestic carriers.

There is no doubt that the CAB ruling will work hardships and inequities. In effect it will be squeezing out competition and stifling small business. But until such time as Congress sees fit to overhaul the act under which CAB operates, that is the way it will be.

LONELY HEARTS

A Delaware woman has been arrested, charged with plotting the murder of two men she married after they answered an advertisement she inserted in a "lonely hearts" publication. Both were old, with considerable means.

This is not a unique development. Records show that lonely men and women often fail to find the love and companionship they seek. Many time murder effectively ends their loneliness. Lonely persons are ideal victims, and murder for profit is a classic type of crime.

Criminal records in this country and abroad are full of cases similar to the Delaware crime. As many as 10 to 20 murders have been perpetrated by men who lured women of means into marriage, only to be summarily murdered. An Indiana woman accused of killing at least 10 husbands has never been apprehended. It is impossible to estimate how many similar murders have never come to light.

Those who think they are lonely, especially if they have means, should be careful in entering into new friendships.

Mastriana and Pecci Ceremony Occurs Sunday

TRENTON, Apr. 25—A Trentonian and a Bristol man were wed here yesterday afternoon, the setting for the four o'clock ceremony being St. James R. C. Church, here. The two who took the vows are Miss Ann Maria Pecci, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pecci, 17 Bond street, and Mr. Vincent James Mastriana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mastriana, 443 Cedar street, Bristol, Pa.

White slipper satin was the choice of the bride for attire on her wedding day. The gown featured a sweet-heart neckline trimmed in white and silver beads; fitted bodice; and full skirt falling into a long train. Her long veil had trim of orange blossoms. She carried a prayer book on which rested two orchids, also valley lilies.

The bridesmaids, the Misses Florence Patch and Lucy Italiano, both of this city, were attired in aqua. The gowns had off-shoulder necklines, fitted bodices and full skirts. Head-piece of each was a king's crown. The attendants carried fan-shaped bouquets of red roses.

Mr. Augustus Nocito and Mr.

The drive-way over the Mill street canal bridge has been replanked.

The most interesting piece of news that Bristolians have lately heard was that received on Saturday that a compromise had been reached in the suit between the Bristol - Doylestown Trolley Company and the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and that permission had been granted to lay the trolley tracks under the bridge of the Trenton Cut-off.

Workmen commenced the work of laying the tracks under the bridge on Monday morning, and it is expected that the cars will be running through this week. In about three or four weeks it will be possible to take the trolley at Bristol and ride to the county seat without interruption.

Persons who had occasion to be up and stirring yesterday morning at five o'clock were treated to a remarkable and beautiful sight. At that hour the stars were shining in the western skies and shedding a rich glow over the quiet and sleeping town. At the same time a passing cloud was considerably pouring its watery contents over the landscape. The result that a beautiful and perfectly-formed rainbow was arched in the west.

The Langhorne Sorosis has been presented by Mitchell Watson with a handsome building lot, 60 feet front by 150 feet deep on Bellevue avenue, in the northern section of the borough, on which to erect a club house which has been in contemplation for some time.

Sante Mastriana, Bristol, were the best men.

Members of the bridal party were served dinner at 5:30, and a reception took place at seven, both affairs being held in Italian-American Sportsmen's Club, here.

Leaving for two weeks honeymoon in the New England states, Mrs. Mastriana was attired in a black gabardine suit, beige coat and black hat. The couple will make their home at 443 Cedar street, Bristol.

For the wedding ceremony, Mrs. Pecci, the bride's mother, chose a wine-toned dress and black hat; while Mrs. Mastriana wore a black dress and hat. Corsages for each were made up of red roses and gardenias.

Facing The Facts

America won the war, but has thus far completely lost the peace.

If the world is ever to be put on a solid, stable and peaceful footing, which has been one of the great objectives of mankind since recorded history began, it would seem imperative to examine the recent record carefully, to see wherein the mistakes have been made.

Moreover, this free America is the one lone Gibraltar of liberty rising out of a world of weak-hearted surrender to the principles of Communism. One by one, every other great nation on earth, and most of the little ones, have succumbed to the temptations of socialism, statism, regimentation, planned management.

Take what example you will, whether that of Russia, or Italy, or Germany, or France, or more recently England—and when you examine the facts as they existed before the surrender to the principles of Socialism and dictatorship, you find that in each of these countries there were in evidence precisely the same trends and emotions now so widespread in our own land.

We have, as a people, the same temptations; and there has not developed, on a wide scale, any of the reaction which might be expected in a wise and alert race—to profit by the mistakes of our predecessors on the downward trail of totalitarianism.

For those who believe in the Republic and in the Constitution, this is a time of supreme peril. Surrender is a one-way street. Long ago a wise man said: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." The truth of this saying is now in process of being demonstrated. If America is vigilant, the American people's freedom can be saved; otherwise, probably not.

In such an hour, the factual examination of public events is not merely a service, but a patriotic duty.

It is idle to say that telling the truth may help the Communists. NOT telling it may be the ruination of the American destiny!

This is a time for more facts, more truth—a period when it is imperative to examine BOTH sides of public questions.

Since Germany surrendered, this country has wasted four precious years. We today are much farther from world peace than when the War ended.

We have largely demoralized our own reconversion into peacetime conditions. We have been saved (thus far) only by Congress from plunging directly into Socialism at the President's beckoning.

Despite the incredibly vast debt with which we emerged from the War, which will be a mortgage on the necks of the next three generations at least, we are still pouring out our national resources with the fabled recklessness of the "sailor on a spree."

Uncountable billions have been expended on a parade of dazzling ventures in globaloney, in which the Atlantic Pact is by no means the first, and probably not the last.

Like a donkey mired in mud, the wriggings of the New Deal have merely dragged us deeper into a morass of defeatism, international rivalries, entangling alliances. We have been making progress backwards.

With this background, the rapid increase in the power of the military branch of government, to the point where it has incredibly vast economic controls, direct manpower controls, the most influential lobby in Washington, access to the inner councils of the President, and, until quite recently, ran the State Department as well—this is a matter of public concern worthy of the most elaborate newspaper study.

As to the Communists, if they derived any pleasure from reading the editorial in question, or any other which has appeared in this column, that's a very small matter.

The fact is that this newspaper has been as bitter and implacable an enemy of Communism as one could find.

It was against building Communist Russia into a world menace—back in the days when Roosevelt and Truman were conceding everything to Stalin, including a great deal of property and lives which didn't belong to them, and which, by the Atlantic Charter, this nation had promised sacredly to defend for their small-nation owners.

It has been consistently against the infiltration of pro-Communists into the national government—was so both before and after President Truman saw fit to dismiss this matter as a "red herring."

It has been consistently against Communism in other fields; the school system, for example, and the radio and press propagandizing agencies. It has opposed it especially in the labor movement, and has pointed out over and again that the anti-Communist provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act would make its preservation worth while, even if all the rest were bad—which it isn't!

Summing up what this column is interested in primarily is to get its readers to think realistically about the many questions facing this generation.

The minister in question appears to have the theory that President Truman, having been re-elected by some twenty-five percent or so of the qualified American voters, is the one to do the thinking for the American people—and that it is presumptuous for anyone else to inquire or criticize with respect these matters.

It's going to be hard to reconcile these two viewpoints.

Navy Man Takes As His Bride, Miss M. Paoletti

A young woman resident of 1618 Trenton avenue, on Saturday became the wife of a man who is serving in the U. S. Navy. The two o'clock wedding in Calvary Baptist Church united Miss Mary Paoletti, daughter of Mrs. Costantino Paoletti, and Donald A. Bobb, R. M. S. N., stationed at Norfolk, Va., the son of Mr. Harry A. Bobb, Philadelphia. The bride's escort to the altar was her brother, Mr. Joseph Paoletti, Trenton avenue.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Lehman Strauss, the organist, Miss Vera Tomlinson, Walnut street; and the vocalist, Miss Viola Wilkie, Croydon. The latter's offerings were "I Love You Truly" and "O Promise Me".

Miss Anna Masko, Trenton avenue, the maid of honor, was attired in light green marquisette, the costume being floor-length. Her matching hat was of marquisette, slippers of silver tone, and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids, the Misses Martha Hattenfield, Croydon, and Lillian Paoletti, sister of the bride, wore lavender marquisette, hats of the same color tone, silver slippers, and in their arms they bore yellow rose-buds.

As she made her way up the aisle, the bride looked attractive in white satin, with French lace midriff. The trained gown had sweetheart style neckline and long

On her hair she wore a wreath of orchid-tulle artificial flowers; and her slippers were white.

Men of the bridal party were Mr. Bernard Amadio, 715 Wood street, brother of the bridegroom; and Mr. Dominic Amadio, 327 Washington street, a cousin. The ring bearer was Henry Porotti, Spring street. Special events following the wedding were a dinner at a New Jersey restaurant for members of the bridal party and the immediate families; and an evening reception at Silver Lake Inn.

The newlyweds have left to spend two weeks in Florida. For the trip the bride wore a gray gabardine suit, navy blue accessories, and a lavender orchid. Their place of residence will be 715 Wood street.

For the church ceremony Mrs. Paul, mother of the bride, selected a black suit, melon-toned hat and blouse, black accessories, and a lavender orchid.

The bride is a graduate of a school of beauty culture; and the bridegroom a graduate of Bristol high school. To his attendants he gave cuff links and the pins. The bride's gifts to her attendants were necklace and earrings sets.

Rodweller and Skerrett rushed Mrs. Bastecki to St. Francis Hospital in Skerrett's car. When they arrived there Rodweller carried the woman in over his shoulder and then, after placing her on a stretcher, collapsed from a heart attack. He later was taken to McKinley Hospital on the orders of his physician, Dr. H. S. Urbanak.

When first admitted, Rodweller was said to be in a critical condition. Late last night, however, hospital authorities reported he was resting comfortably.

Mrs. Bastecki was treated for exposure and turned over to the Second District police upon her discharge from the hospital. She was booked for attempted suicide and released in the custody of her husband, Frank, 21. They have one child, a year old.

Three Young Women Attend Miss Mary Finney at Wedding

A maid of honor, two bridesmaids, best man and two ushers comprised the bridal party at the Saxton-Finney rites in St. Mark's R. C. Church at three o'clock on Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Albert Glass officiated at the ceremony uniting Miss Mary Jane Finney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Finney, 431 Buckley street, and Mr. Horace Carter Saxton, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace C. Saxton, 531 Swain street. Mr. Finney escorted his daughter to the altar as a bride was held by Miss Katherine Keating, of Linden street. Vocal selections were by Miss Margaret Fallon, Corson street.

The bride was gowned in white organza, the costume having an illusion neckline, with lace ruffles providing an off-shoulder effect. Lace was also used for vertical ruffles on the skirt. Sleeves were long. Her train of seed pearls held a lace-trimmed net veil; and her arm bouquet of white roses had at its center a white orchid.

The trio of attendants were likewise costumed in organza, these gowns having apron effect of eyelid, and sleeves being cap style. Miss Mary Hoffman, 711 Pine street, the maid of honor, wore white, with trim of lavender; her white picture hat of horsehair having lavender streamers. Her arm bouquet was composed of mixed blossoms in lavender and white. Miss Patricia Alta, Jackson street, wore yellow; and Miss Louise Smith, Swain street, light green. These two bridesmaids had horsehair picture hats, with streamers, to match their gowns. Arm bouquets for the two were made up of mixed spring blossoms.

Mr. Joseph Singer, Bath street, was best man for Mr. Saxton; the ushers being Messrs. Michael Hall, Fourth avenue, and Edward Harm, Croydon.

For attendance at the wedding Mrs. Finney selected a navy blue dress and pink accessories; and choice of Mrs. Saxton, mother of the bride-groom, was an aqua dress and white accessories. Corsages of the two were white roses.

Covers were arranged for 100 when dinner was served at the Finney residence; the six o'clock reception taking place there also, with dancing in the rumpus room. Mr. and Mrs. Saxton are spending two weeks at Miami, Fla. As a traveling costume the bride chose a navy blue gabardine suit, white straw picture hat with navy blue trim, and white accessories. The orchid from her bridal bouquet was used at a corsage. Her gifts to attendants were sterling silver bracelets; and to the best man and ushers Mr. Saxton gave the pins. The bride and bride-groom, who will reside at 431 Buckley street, are graduates of Bristol high school.

convention at the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia, October 11th, 12th and 13th. A summer school of leadership training is also looked forward to, these to be held the week of July 11th at West Chester State Teachers College.

Hostesses to the group were the East Bristol Township, Maple Shade, Croydon and Laurel Bend Parent-Teacher associations. The invocation in the morning was given by the Rev. Edward G. Yeomans, pastor of Bristol Presbyterian Church. Opening the morning session at ten o'clock, Henry Adams, president of Maple Shade PTA, extended greetings to the group; and the response was given by Mrs. Stanley Blinn, Newtown, vice president of Bucks County Council. Group singing was led by Miss Helen Chew, Buckingham, assisted by Anne Carver, Buckingham, pianist. A chalk talk was given by Mrs. Jane Geisinger, a representative of the Philadelphia Dairy Council, entitled "Stag Line."

A panel discussion on "Public Health in Bucks County" completed the morning session. There were four participants with Mrs. Pratt presiding at the discussion.

Dr. Ruth Pedder, assistant to the county superintendent of schools, had as her subject "New Psychiatric Guidance Clinic," speaking on the need of a psychiatric clinic for the school children. She cited several cases to illustrate her point.

Mrs. Grace Bancroft, R. N., Doylestown, representing the State Department of Health, had as her subject "Public Health Nurse of Bucks County." Mrs. Bancroft very briefly outlined the work of the public health nurses in Bucks County. She mentioned that there are four public health nurses who conduct clinics in Bucks County—two at Doylestown, and one each at Quakertown and Bristol. She announced date of the biennial orthopedic clinic at Abington Hospital as May 27th.

A Bristol resident, Mrs. Minerva Epstein, told of "Work of the Bucks County Tuberculosis Society." She stated that the fight waged against tuberculosis by the society is supported solely through sale of Christmas seals. She informed that over 6,000 chest X-rays were taken last year in the county, and that such have made people X-ray conscious.

Robert Jones, Doylestown, state representative of the National Foundation, Infantile Paralysis, told the audience that 50 cents of every dollar raised stays in the local chapter for local use.

Luncheon was served in the fire station by members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to 50 guests during the noon recess. The Hawaiian Serenaders, Donald Hibbs, Edgely; Joseph Haines and Arnold Moore, Croydon, furnished luncheon music.

The afternoon session opened with an outstanding performance given by the Bristol high school glee club under direction of Charles Quigley. This program was as follows: Salutation (Gaines); "The Builder" (Cadman) conducted by John Parrella; "The Bells of St. Mary," solo by Lester Shire; "Nocturne" (Fehlsch), male quartet, Edward Plowman, 1st tenor, Lester Shire, 2nd tenor, Harold Thompson, 1st bass, John Parrella, 2nd bass; solo, "Just A Wearyin' For You," Lester Shire; Mary Had A Little Lamb," entire group; "Italian Street Song" (Victor Herbert), solo, Joan Marsh; octet, "There is a Tavern in the Town"; solo, "Love is Where You Find It," Joan Marsh; "One World" (O'Hara), and "Onward Christian Soldiers" (Sullivan-Waring), glee club; "Battle Hymn of the Republic" (Steele-Waring), solo, Lester Shire; assistant accompanist was Helen Cioti; and the accompanist, Berenice Britton.

Other music for the day was in the form of vocal solo, Elizabeth Crawford, Buckingham, sang "June Is In My Heart"; and Kenneth Feil, Buckingham, sang "Clancy Lowered the Boom."

Paterson Firm to Boost Its Output With New Machine

mand. Leonhard explained that Paterson does a lot of its selling through paper merchants, all of whom today have over-expanded and unbalanced inventories.
"Once these inventories are exhausted," he remarked, "buying will be resumed."
Leonhard explained that the company today makes its vegetable parchment from pulp instead of rag, as in the past. He said that pulp no longer was in short supply, adding that prices were also easing.
A considerable portion of Paterson's output goes to the food industry. From first quarter results, it is continuing to show increased sales volume. This, naturally, will tend to keep Paterson's production up.
Leonhard said that while the company had a fairly large export business in the early 40s, largely from lend-lease, the export business today was rather small "due to the dollar shortage." Last year export shipments to 32 countries amounted to 673,967 pounds. In 1947, export sales—to 42 countries—totaled 1,290,860 pounds.
Until a few years ago, Paterson Parchment was family-controlled and operated. Its president, William C. Leonhard, is a grandson of one of the founders. Today the company has some 400 stockholders and its stock is traded over-the-counter.
The company was started in 1885 at Paterson, N. J., in the "old gun mill" where the first Colt guns were manufactured. Later it moved to a new building in Passaic, N. J. In 1902 it absorbed the Megargee Paper Mills, which made its base paper, water leaf, and was located at Modena. Megargee remained as a subsidiary until 1923, when it was consolidated with Paterson and the company moved to its present plant at Bristol.
Vegetable parchment was discovered by accident by W. E. Gaine, an Englishman, in 1853. While preparing a sheet of cotton rag paper made by hand for use in demonstrating a lecture, he accidentally dropped it into a receptacle containing sulphuric acid. He discovered, to his surprise, that the paper had taken on an entirely new form, that it had become translucent, and that no amount of soaking in water, or even boiling, had any effect on it. However, it was not until 1861 that vegetable parchment was first produced on a commercial scale.
Paterson today produces its vegetable parchment in 179 variations. At its Bristol plant it operates complete paper making, parchmentizing, printing and finishing divisions, with millions of plain and printed food wrappers moving out of the plant daily. It also has a finishing and printing plant at San Francisco, where it processes items for customers' requirements on the West Coast.
The vegetable parchment is a wet-strength and grease-resisting paper. It is used for butter wrappers, turkey crate liners, fish fillet wrappers, vegetable wraps, pie doilies, auto accessory wrappers, ice cream wrappers, rubber mold liners, druggist ointment pads, flow-

Leonhard was asked whether the cellophane industry would not furnish competition for his business. He replied in the negative, pointing out that items such as bacon had to "breathe" and that experience had demonstrated that they could do so while wrapped in vegetable parchment, but could not when wrapped in cellophane.
By the same token, he said, vegetable parchment could not compete with cellophane in wrappings for self-service counters in that while it was translucent, it was not transparent.
